Course Description

POLS 5553 is a graduate lecture course which focuses on the comparative political study of the Russian Federation and the fourteen other independent states of the former Soviet Union.

Course Goals

In this course, we will primarily examine the difficult process of dismantling an entrenched Marxist-Leninist political and centrally planned economic system in favor of more democratic and market oriented forms of political, economic, and social organization. Such a transition has been attempted, with mixed results, in most of the states of Central Eurasia since 1991. Principally through an examination of the establishment and traditional practice of Marxism-Leninism in what was the Soviet Union, we will seek answers as to why the reform communist processes of the Gorbachev era failed and why so many diverse forces have emerged since the dissolution of communist party rule. By doing so, we will attempt to make some assessment of the short and long term prospects for democracy and the market in the former Soviet republics.

Required Materials

1) Donald W. Treadgold and Herbert J. Ellison, Twentieth Century Russia, 9th edition (Westview)
2) Grigory Ioffe, Global Studies: Russia and the Near Abroad, 12th edition (McGraw-Hill)

Strongly Recommended Materials

1) A current map of Central Eurasia and the world.
3) Jon Furberg and Richard Hopkins, College Style Sheet, 2nd edition (on reserve)
Resource Materials

The University (Moffett) Library contains valuable resources which can aid students in their study and research for this course. In addition to many relevant books, a number of periodicals will be particularly useful (recent issues will be found on the current periodicals shelves; back issues are either bound or on microfilm/microfiche). A list of selected periodicals available in the library and local sources of broadcast media significant for political science research is attached to this syllabus.

The midterm and final examinations consist of a series of short answer questions. The final exam tests only the material covered since the second exam.

The paper assignment requires students, in consultation with the instructor, to select an appropriate topic and prepare a properly referenced (APSA style), twenty to thirty page, typed, double spaced paper. The instructor requests each student to prepare a brief prospectus and meet with him in an individual conference before finalizing a paper topic. All conferences must be held by September 25. The specific due date for the term paper is December 4.
