TEXT: Voces de Hispanoamérica; Chang-Rodríguez, tercera edición, 2004

COURSE OBJECTIVES
Students will acquire an overview of Spanish-American literature, authors, and literary periods from the Pre-Columbian period to the 20th Century and will improve their Spanish language skills through the readings, class discussions, lectures, and exam writing. The course is designed for those students who have completed beginning and intermediate Spanish, or the equivalent, and Introduction to Hispanic Literature.

CLASS ACTIVITIES
Students will actively participate in class and small-group discussions, take notes on the lectures, and read aloud when called upon.

PARTICIPATION AND ATTENDANCE
Students will be evaluated based on their level of participation, preparation, and attendance. Students will receive a final grade of F for excessive absences (more than four).

EXAMINATIONS
There will be three major exams. A student who is absent from an exam must present documented proof of illness or university activity to the instructor before a make-up exam will be allowed.

HOMEWORK
Students will write answers to questions over the readings which will facilitate understanding of the material. The homework will be collected at the end of each class. Homework will be accepted late only up to one class day.

ORAL PRESENTATION
Each student will be asked to recite to the class a poem of at least twenty-five lines. The poem must be selected from the text, and the student should briefly explain the reasons for his or her particular selection. Fluency, pronunciation, and intonation will be factors used in determining this grade.

GRADERS
The final course grade will be calculated as follows:
- Exams: 60%
- Presentation: 10%
- Participation: 10%
- Homework: 20%
CLASS ETIQUETTE
Students are expected to be prepared for class each day, arrive on time, and remain for the duration of the class. Leaving the classroom during class time will not be tolerated. The sound on all electronic devices must be disabled and the devices must be put away.
